TORCHLIGHT

Health is good at this time. Have good show for something to eat in the near future.

We are surprised at our county officials trying to make indictment against one of our citizens for not working the county road when said man has not been appointed to fill that honorable position for six years. He did try to work it three years. To begin with he has no road to work; one end runs up at the river, and the other one on a rock cliff. The county would furnish no means to remove the rocks. Then one of our generous citizens offered to give a road to avoid the rocks if the county would do the fencing. The county officials said, "No, we can't fence it." Would not so much as come and look at the proposed change to be made. Then another good man said he would have an ice cream supper to make the fence. The officials said, "No, we won't receive the road." Then how about a man not working the road with no tools, men or any road to work.

BISHOP MCCOY TOLD OF AN INTERESTING EXPERIENCE

Louisa people will long retain a most kindly recollection of Bishop James H. McCoy, who presided over the annual session of the Western Virginia Conference held at Louisa in 1917. His death, which occurred a few months ago, is much lamented.

The following story will be of local interest:

The death of that lovable Christian gentleman, Bishop James H. McCoy, recalls an incident that occurred at the session of the Arkansas Conference at Booneville in 1911. It was at the memorial service on Sunday afternoon. Tributes were being paid to the life and character of a sterling old superannuate, "Uncle Jimmie" Cox, who had passed away during the year. Bishop McCoy, who was presiding, asked some one to take the chair, and he spoke impressively and with feeling.

He said that in 1865, after the surrender of General Lee, a Confederate soldier was walking from Virginia back to his home in Missouri. On the way he received reliable information that conditions due to intense political excitement in the locality of his old home, made it unsafe for him to return there. Homeless, penniless, hungry, at dusk he sat on the end of a cross-tie of the old Memphis and Charleston Railroad, near Stevenson, Ala. A gentleman, observing him, approached and engaged him in conversation. Learning his condition, he invited the soldier to his home. The invitation was accepted, and the Confederate found a home until employment was obtained.

Previously the soldier had not been a Christian, but through the influence of the kind and sincerely religious spirit of his newly found friend he was led to accept Christ and afterwards became a Methodist preacher in Alabama.

"That Confederate soldier," said Bishop McCoy, "was my father, and 'Uncle Jimmie' Cox was the gentleman who entertained him."

HOME CIRCLE COLUMN

THE GRADUATE.

We all love the young graduate who comes home and takes her right place in her family and seeks in a pleasant and unaffected manner to improve the home life and teach and guide the younger ones in that home; better is she now able to fill her place in the church and among her young friends who have not had her advantages; where can she find a broader field for good work? Commonplace though it may appear, this doing of one's duty embodies the highest ideal of life and character. The doing of the commonplace work achieves the welfare of the world. We love the young that does not claim to know more than other people; it is not right and then it is not wise; for it is such a good way of cheating oneself. Sometime, other people who have been schooled in the university of the world, could teach the new graduates many things which are valuable, of which she has never heard. All great truths are not always grammatically spoken, and everything that can be known is not found in books. It is right for the young people to have opinions about everything that comes before them; but it would be well to remember that the great achievements of life have been accomplished by men and women in the gray of life, not in the downy years of youth. Let them look for the best in everything and everybody and "do all the good you can in all the ways you can, to all the people you can," in whatever place circumstances beyond your control place you. A college education is a valuable education and greatly to be desired, but if it fails to broaden the heart as well as the mind, it is a failure.

People who have been bolstered up and lived all their lives are seldom good for anything in a crisis. When misfortune comes they look around for something to cling to or lean upon. If the prop is not there, down they go. Once down they are as helpless as capsize turtles, or unhorsed men in armor, and they cannot find their feet without assistance. They are like summer vines which never grow even ligneous but stretch out a thousand little hands to grasp the stronger shrubs; and if they cannot reach them they lie disheveled in the grass, hoof-trodden and beaten of every storm. It will be found that the first real movement upward will not take place until, in a spirit of resolute self-denial, one is mastered. Necessity is usually the spur that sets the sluggish energies in motion. Poverty is therefore often a blessing to a young man than prosperity; for, while the one tends to stimulate his powers, the other inclines them to longer disuse.

We believe there would be more frugality in the homes if men would give their wives a reasonable amount of money for household expenses and let them have all they can save out of it for their own use; and men, too, would be better off than in the unmethodical and haphazard way in which most homes are run. Women would be more apt to study kitchen economy if they could see a reward ahead. A nation of thrifty men cannot be born of thriftless mothers. Women have need to know more of business, and think more of means to end than is usual among them.

WHAT A WOMAN CAN DO.

She can come to a decision without the slightest trouble of reasoning on it; and no sane man can do that.

Six of them can talk at once and get along first rate, and no two men can do that.

She can safely stick fifty pins in her dress while he is getting one under his thumb nail.

She is as cool as a cucumber in half a dozen tight dresses and skirts, while a man will fret and fume and growl in one loose shirt.

She can talk sweet as peaches and cream to the woman she hates, while two men would be punching each other's heads before they had exchanged ten words.

She can appreciate a kiss from her husband seventy-five years after the marriage ceremony is performed.

She can go to church and afterwards tell you what every woman had on, and in some rare instances can give you some faint idea what the text was.

She can walk half the night with a colicky infant in her arms without once expressing the desire of murdering the infant.

She can—but what's the use? A woman can do anything or everything and do it well.

She can do more in a minute than a man can do in an hour and do it better.

She can drive a man crazy for twenty-four hours and then bring him to a paradise in two seconds by simply tickling him under the chin, and there does not live that mortal son of Adam's misery who can do it.

Don't judge a man by his clothes. God made one and the tailor made the other. Don't judge a man by his family, for Cain belonged to a good family.

Don't judge a man by the house he lives in, for the lizard and the rat often inhabit the grander structure. When a man dies they who survive him ask what property there is left behind; the angel who bends over the dying man asks what good deeds he has sent before him.

Walter Weddington, of Harold, and Otto Allen, of Langley, have enlisted for overseas service in the infantry.
